NOW THE HARNESS MAN'S WAIL.

Motor Cars Are Driving Him to Thinking of His Living.

How is the harness man going to live? That was the question under discussion at a joint meeting of jobbers and retailers of the Western Harness Manufacturers and Dealers' association at the Coates House. About fifteen members were present to arrange for a convention to be held here the same week as the thirteenth convention in January.

"I don't know what we're going to do if the price of motor cars keeps falling and the price of hides continues to rise," said C. P. Shipley, secretary of the association. "Last spring the hide dealers told us that we would reap the benefit out of the tannery vats. They would be cheaper then, the dealers said. Here it is, the autumn nearly gone and prices sky high. How are we going to live? The spring hides have been taken from the vats and delivered to us at advanced prices and we are given no plausible reason for it."

"And the motor cars are putting the crimp on our business, too," the secretary continued. "What I know of a horseman who has had as many as 200 horses in his stables who is quitting the business to enter the motor car business. If all the horsemen forsake the horses for the hons what are we going to do? We'll be forced down to the point of eating machine-stitched paucakes and hand sewed ham."

An Inhuman Robber a Suicide.

Huntington, N. Y., Nov.—Charles Thomas cut his throat and fell to the floor dying as detectives burst open the door of the house in which he was hiding. According to the police Thomas said he was one of the men who, a few days ago, robbed Antonio Borla, a contractor of Amityville, N. Y.

Borla was tied to a tree in a dense patch of woods, and his clothing cut off with a razor. His flesh was gashed several times, but the robbers paid little heed to his screams. Money was taken from Borla, and he was left to die from exposure. Borla was told that if he escaped and told any one of the theft the robbers would return and kill him. All night Borla worked at his bonds and finally escaped, but he kept the affair secret until the discovery of his clothing in the woods brought the police to his home for an explanation. He then told of the robbery and implicated Thomas.

Bryan is to Go to Mexico.

Lincoln, Neb., Nov.—William J. Bryan and his wife will depart in a few days for an extended Western and Southern trip, probably including a stay at health resorts in Mexico. Details of the journey are not yet complete. A rumor that Mr. Bryan intended to hold a series of conferences with Southern and Western Democratic leaders is denied by the ex-candidate, who says the trip has no political significance and is only for purposes of rest.

Wheat Getting Good Start.

"Our wheat is making pretty good growth and with fair weather for a week or so it will go through the winter in pretty good shape. Owing to the drying of the land we had a pretty tough time getting it in," said C. A. Jackson, of Clayton county, Ill., who was here this week with a consignment of cattle. "Our corn crop, however, will not average much better than half a crop and has been selling at 55 and 60c. Many cattle have been shipped out of my county which would otherwise have been fed, had corn been at a reasonable figure. I attribute the decline of the hog market here of late simply to the fact that farmers were anxious to get rid of their hogs, and forcing them on the market in such liberal numbers has brought about the decline." —Live Stock Reporter.

Wants Bryan as Evangelist.

Burlington, Kas., Nov.—The Reverend French E. Oliver, who is holding a revival meeting here, has issued an open letter to William J. Bryan, urging the Nebraskan that he would become an equal of the Apostle Paul.

"Personally your three defeats have been three sources of sorrow to me," writes Mr. Oliver, "as I have hoped to see you elected to the presidency. Who knows? Perhaps God has withheld the presidency from you in order that you may become more to your country than President. I am firmly convinced that one ambassador of Christ of your caliber is worth more to this nation than 10,000 Presidents."

The Missouri Press.

Labor can never compete with capital as long as they stand up and vote for men who are identified with the interests of trusts.—Steelville Ledger.

It is to be hoped that the next Legislature will get along without submitting more than a dozen or so constitutional amendments for the next election.—Springfield Leader.

The result of the Republican senatorial race in Missouri probably will put a chill on Richard C. Kerens' disposition to be the Santa Claus of the party in Missouri.—Chillicothe Constitution.

William J. Bryan has been thrice defeated, but it doesn't become men whose stock in trade is the favor of the Democratic party to indulge in the schoolboyish practice of flinging taunts at the leader.—Kansas City Post.

Tom Morgan, who "fit, bled and died" for the Democratic party in Kansas this year, solemnly offers up this prayer of thanks: "We have met the enemy, and we are his'n, but, thank God, we're not Hagen's."—Kansas City Journal.

A New Use For News.

Somewhere in St. Louis there is a young woman who should be known to fame and whose name would be treasured in the heart of every woman—that is, if they only knew who she was.

She rode last night on a Page avenue car. There were dozens of stenographers and salesladies in the jam which loaded the car to the rear platform, and before the journey was half made the rain was falling in torrents. There were few umbrellas and many hats.

She who should be known to fame watched several agonized young women dash out into the rain, with every pelting drop giving an added droop to drooping plumes. When she prepared to leave the car she called a newsboy, purchased two newspapers for 2 cents, spread them across her new hat—one of the kind which is sometimes called a soul kiss but looks more like a fried egg. Majestically she strode into the darkness and the rain, the thick layer of paper protecting her millinery display. An investment of 2 cents to save a $20 hat made an impression with all who saw the act.—St. Louis Republic.

No Cash to Give, They Weep.

Dallas, Tex., Nov.—Weeping because they could not give cash, but offering jewelry, stock, farm products and even household articles, delegates to the Texas Baptist Missionary Convention here rallied in a great effort to lift a debt of $45,000 on the Texas Baptist University.

The scene as the offers were made was one of the most affecting ever witnessed in any church gathering. Despite the sacrifices offered, however, such little progress was made toward raising the needed sum it was decided to postpone the collection until more prosperous conditions prevail among members of the convention.

All the ready money of the delegates was exhausted in raising $150 to pay current expenses. When the call to lift the $45,000 debt was made a general hush fell on the gathering. Finally one old man rose and, explaining, amid tears, that on account of the "hard times" he could not give any money, presented his gold watch.

Instantly other delegates offered watches, prize cattle, part of their crops, all explaining that they could not give money. With the decision to postpone the collection all the gifts offered were rejected.

Maybe the boys wouldn't leave home if you would cut out these frosts you call "wafers" and these freaks you call "cookies." The wafers are nothing more than vitalized air gaugly welded into shape, while the cookies, however palatable, are devoid of satisfying qualities. Get back to the old time sweet cakes, sisters. Bake a six-gallon jar of them at a time and keep them in a convenient place. A leather medal for any boy who will not whirligig with joy and stick close to home as a flea to a dog's back when he learns the news. To make the old time, unadulterated, inimitable kind follow these directions: Sift your flour upon the board and hollow it out in the center. Into this cavity pour one cup sugar, one cup of country sorghum, one scant halfcup of sour milk, teaspoonful of soda, teaspoonful of salt, two teaspoons of baking powder, two eggs, a scant cup of lard and a little nutmeg. Mix the flour into this mess until you have a stiff dough. Roll this out, cut into discs with a tomato can, and bake in the oven. Any boy will hang around the house half a day for a morsel of this uncooked dough, and will stay the rest of the week if given free run of the sweetcake jar. Try this prescription, sisters. All others are base imitations.—Paris Appeal.
